charity: water

Activating the Next Generation of charity: water Supporters

Alex Komoni
2/2/2026

Value Proposition

- Customer Persona: Emma - The Activist Student

- Value Proposition: Emma wants impact that she can see. charity: water connects her donations to clean water projects led by changemakers that use full transparency and documented outcome to show exactly how her support delivers clean water.

charity: water

Copy for Landing Page

Headline: See Your Activism Turn Into Clean Water

Subheadline: Your donation funds clean water projects led by changemakers, with full transparency and documented results you can track.

charity: water

Brand Visuals - Color Palette & Typography (Font)

The color palette chosen communicates hope, clarity, and trust. The yellow from the jug logo signals optimism, while blue as a main background reinforces water and stability. Neutral tones keep the design clean and focused on the message.

The colors and font come directly from charity: water's brand guidelines. Yellow draws attention to the logo and donation action, while the blue and neutral tones communicate trust, water, and clarity. Proxima Nova as a font supports a clean direct voice.

Brand Visuals - Photography

This image was chosen for the large amount of negative space, clean lighting, and on brand showcasing of clean water being accessed.

charity: water

NÖZ

charity: water

Landing Page

This landing page appeals to Emma by treating donating as action, not charity. The direct headline usage of “activism” is a direct call to her character.

The bright action-driven CTA reinforces her desire to see her impact and the supporting subheadline makes her confident that her support leads to results.

AI-Inspired Lifestyle Photos

charity: water

LinkedIn Post - Submission

charity: water

I recently designed a landing page for charity: water, and it sharpened my view on value proposition.

This project showed me that effective branding is really about focus and trust. Every decision from the headline language to the color usage needed to support something clearly about the brand. One of the biggest challenges was stripping away marketing language and replacing it with language that target my intended audience.

I also used AI to iterate the landing page faster, and be more critical of my own work. I focused a model around language, visuals, and how impact was communicated, along with training it to Emma, my customer persona.